

Intellectual Property Statement

The ideas, strategies, technology solutions, and proprietary methodologies described in this document are the exclusive intellectual property of Milenial Inc. This includes, but is not limited to:

- The AI-powered Compliance-as-a-Service (CaaS) platform and its underlying compliance logic, document risk-scoring engine, and procurement audit modules
- The planned integration of Milenial's systems with third-party platforms such as Procurify and other federal procurement management tools
- The dual-track business model that combines live federal supplier participation with compliance infrastructure innovation
- Business development strategies, contract sourcing logic, and procurement data pathways for selling government-compliant fasteners through a drop-ship model

All intellectual property rights—including patents, trademarks, copyrights, trade secrets, and supplier compliance workflows—are owned by Milenial Inc. Any unauthorized use, reproduction, distribution, or modification of this information is strictly prohibited and may result in legal action.

The recipient acknowledges that no license—express or implied—is granted to use, copy, replicate, or exploit any part of this document or the intellectual property described herein without the prior written consent of Milenial Inc.

This statement applies equally to:

- Technical architecture
- Compliance methodologies
- Supplier sourcing workflows
- Platform interface designs
- Integrated content and operational logic